Audio Visual Design Consulting

If you are in the planning stages for new construction, remodeling or upgrading your AV system, CEI can be your AV Design Consultant.

We take a practical approach to engineering audio visual solutions. We understand that a design that offers every technological advancement available as well as an immense budget to go along with it can be less than desirable. We strive to provide solutions that stress the correct product selection, ease of use, high reliability, and a realistic budget.

Our Design Consulting team provides all of the necessary documents to cover all seven phases of the project -

- Phase One - Systems Programming Phase
- Phase Two - Design Development
- Phase Three - Construction Document Page
- Phase Four - Bid Phase
- Phase Five - Construction Administration
- Phase Six - Systems Commissioning
- Phase Seven - Systems Training

The details included in these phases include-

- Scope of Work
- Project Specifications
- CAD Plans
- Equipment Listing
- Proof of Performance
- Bid Process and Selection

We call out all needs by other trades such as electrical, millwork, HVAC and general contractor work to reduce or eliminate change orders by others. Our national network of affiliates allows CEI to accurately estimate labor for a selected market.

CEI's in-house interactive whiteboard provides capabilities that were unheard of just a few short years ago. It allows us to conduct web conferences with multiple parties anywhere in the world. What sets this tool apart from other web conferencing technologies is that all parties can view and annotate CAD files and pdfs at the same time. This eliminates the need for costly travel and allows us to verify that no information is lost.

"Working with our architects, interior designers and management, CEI's team of engineers and designers take our concept and designs a system that meets our needs and maintains our budget."
